THE BILLY-GOAT. BY MATT WHEELER.

The billy-goat's a pretty bird And loves to dine on shirts; But for a midday luncheon he Prefers to cat hoop-skirts. Old oyster-cans and rubber shoes Appease his appetite; While barrel-hoops and corset-stays Fill him with great delight. VACCINATION.

He stooped and tenderly took her hand; She thrilled at the touch of her gentle lover, And sighed and blushed as she saw him stand, Devoted, silent, and strong above her. Her heart beat rapid its reveille;

A THRILLING TRAGEDY.

BY JOHN L. CARNCROSS.

That night, when the bell of Miquilet told the midnight hour, Isabella stood in her balcony, which overlung the garden. A slight movement was soon heard among the orange foliage, and a tall figure, shrouded in a flowing mantle, advanced and stood beneath the balcony.

"Are you ready?" asked the mask. "O K!" answered the maiden, in a breath scarce audible from terror.

Secure, then, this ladder to the rails and deseend." And throwing a ladder of silken cords, it has caught by Isabella, who, having fastened it as lesired, the next moment she was in the arms of Now, then, for the chapel of the nearest justic of the peace. Ere the sun-glints fall upon the Al-hambra Saloon you will be mine." 'That morning you must never see," cried a man who advanced from an umbrageous shrubbery close by, and struck Pedro a powerful blow behind 'I am slugged!" cried the unfortunate man, as he sank senseless into the arms of his assailant who bore him swiftly away. The next morning the Donna Isabella was buried in grief and a percale wrapper. Corsetless, and with tear-stained cheeks, she sought her mother. "They have taken my Pedro," she cried, despairingly. "Who could have done it?" "It must have been the ten-spot or jack," re-sponded the mother. "Nothing less than that can take the pedra."

In one corner of the Valencia cemetery may be seen a grave, kept beautiful by flowers, which loving hands have strown upon it. It is the grave of the Donna Isabella. She died at the age of seventy-four, having raised seven children. This is not romantic, but you can bet on its being a centre shot

Delaware Peaches.

The terrible news comes from Delaware and Maryland that the peach growers are alarmed and that fears are felt that the trees have been killed. It is a singular thing that the peach growers have been regularly alarmed about this time every year for the last ten years, and that feurs are always entertained about the beginning of spring that the trees have been killed. The probability is that the crop will be larger than ever and that prices will be no smaller.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL NEWS.

Wall Street Transactions-The Latest Quetation in Stocks and Bonds-New York and Baltimore Produce Markets-London and Paris Money Markets.

The following observations on the transactions in the financial market yesterday, together with opening, highest, lowest, and closing quotations, are furnished by the banking-house of H. D. Cooke, jr., & Co., 1429 F street, Washington, D. C.:

The market to day has been lower than yesterday and exceedingly fractive. The range of fluctuations has been very limited and scarcely large enough to embrace commissions. At the close three-fifths of the list is up $\frac{1}{6}$ to $\frac{17}{6}$ per cent., the latter Denver and Rio Grande, being the only stock that has varied more than I per cent since opening, the rest of the list having changed only fractionally. The remaining two-fifths of the list has declined ½ to ½ per cent. The market is absolutely void of oniside pressure, and there is no important news to record. Thus far only \$2,000,000 of the \$7,000,000 April interest on the public debt has been drawn from the Treasury under the or-der prepaying the same without rebate, which went nto effect Monday morning.

In a recent article we dwelt to some extent on the many damages and consequent expenses and delays caused by so severe a winter as the one from which we are just emerging. Perhaps it would be appropriand yet keeps its mouth shut. This is where it has the advantage over the campaign orator.

ate to refer again to the two-fold danger of a heavy snow-fall. Not only does its coming block traffic and necessitate enormous expenditures, but its disappearance also may be regarded as a source of great danger to a railroad's property. Should the change from cold to warmer weather be at all sudden we are apt to have many alarming floods throughout the country, which may cause very serious injury to road-beds. All through the entire country there are immense quantitles of snow and ice, which, acted upon by mild weather for a few days, would pour forth a great volume of water-more than the natural drainage could cessfully carry off. Hence we are likely to have disasters of which the recent freshet in the Platte represent, and the boys were mean and would not gion is a foreshadowing. Weeks et al. In error to the Supreme Court of the State of New York. Decree effirmed with costs. Online by Mr. Lucite.

Railroad bonds active, but irregular. The stock market was irregular and unsettled, but at the first board the general list advanced \(\frac{1}{2} \) per cent, the latter in Denver and Rio Grande. Before noon, however, the speculation became weak, and a decline of \(\frac{1}{2} \) per cent, took place, in which the entire list participated. In the afternoon the market was dull, but fairly steady. In the late dealings a strong tone prevailed, and an advance of \(\frac{1}{2} \) per cent, was recorded, in which Pacific Mail, Michigan Central, Iron Mountain, Lake Shore, and Union Pacific were most prominent. Indianapolts, Bloomington and Western opened at an advance of \(\frac{1}{2} \) per cent.
